Pete Patton, of Patton, Bollinger county, who is picking cotton for John Proffer, near Coker Landing, was quite seriously hurt last Sunday afternoon, when a team of mules he was driving got frightened at a hole in Varner river bridge, a mile and a quarter west of Kennett, and backed the wagon off the bridge. In the fall, about ten feet, he and his wife and 5-year-old daughter were thrown out beyond the team and wagon, on the ground, and his wife and daughter escaped practically unhurt, but Mr. Patton sustained a dislocation of his left shoulder. J. P. Nation and J. O. Watson witnessed the accident and went to his assistance and helped him extricate the mules, that had become entangled in the harness. He promptly secured a physician and had his shoulder set and is recovering as rapidly as could be expected.—Dunklin Democrat.

Ironton Register.

Last Saturday evening City Marshal Fisher apprehended a young man celebrating Hallowe'en by destroying property in the north end of town. When he was taken in custody he gave the names of four confederates. All were released on their promise to appear before the mayor Monday morning. All showed up at the appointed time and under the escort of the marshal, the quintette were taken to the various places they had committed their depredations Saturday night, made to repair the damage done, and then released with the admonition to go their way and sin no more. The officials are certainly to be commended in this matter. We know that boys will be boys, and it is not so long since we were a boy, and we know boys must have some fun. But the Hallowe'en celebrations in Ironton long since passed the point where patience ceased to be a virtue. Let us hope the worst is over.

Blackleg in Cattle

The Missouri state board of agriculture, and state veterinarian, Dr. D. F. Luckey, at Columbia, are receiving messages and letters concerning outbreaks of blackleg in young cattle, indicative that the disease appears to be more prevalent than it has been for a number of years. Secretary Jewell Mayes calls special attention to the following interview by Doctor Luckey:

"The symptoms of blackleg are very easily recognized by anyone who has ever seen a case. As a rule, the disease appears in a lot of young cattle when on good feed or pasture and making rapid growth. As a rule, it affects the fattest calves in the lot. It runs a very rapid course, lasting as a rule, from twelve to twenty-four hours and almost invariably results in death. The calf first shows lameness. Within a few hours, a swelling appears on some part of the body and generally on one of the quarters. Rubbing the swelling causes a crackling sound beneath the skin. When the animal is skinned, the affected portion appears bruised as if it had been hit with a club. These symptoms are unmistakable.

"The carcasses of blackleg calves should be thoroughly burned in order to destroy infection and prevent the spread of the disease. If these carcasses are not burned, the infection will remain on the premises for years and make cattle-growing unprofitable unless all young cattle are regularly vaccinated.

"Whenever there is an outbreak of blackleg, all the young cattle in the community should be vaccinated. In the event that a case is lost in a herd, and a little time would be required to secure the vaccine, it is advisable to reduce the feed so that they will shrink slightly. They are not so apt to develop blackleg while shrinking as while gaining in weight. Three days after the vaccine is administered, they may be put back on full feed or good pasture."

Farmers and stockmen are invited to communicate with State Veterinarian Luckey or the board, in case blackleg is breaking out and free advice is desired.

WORMS

When in health the baby laughs, the child plays, the youth enjoys athletic sports. The contrary indicates some departure from health, and in the case of children, is often caused by worms; a child so afflicted is pale, sickly and peevish. WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE is the deadly enemy of worms. It destroys the worms and strengthens the weakened organs. Children who take it readily recover their normal happy condition.

To Help Railroads

The Railroad commission of the state of Georgia, realizing the serious financial predicament in which the railroads are at present, has decided to come to the rescue of the transportation interests to tide them over their dilemma. The chairman of the commission in a letter to the general counsel of the Southern railway states that owing to the material decrease in the revenues of carriers the Georgia railroad commission will not now nor until the present financial situation is relieved impose upon any of the roads subject to its jurisdiction any expenditures for new stations, warehouses, terminal facilities, etc., except such as are absolutely necessary. If the railroad commissions of other states follow the example of the Georgia commission it will aid greatly in saving the roads from the financial ruin which is now staring them in the face. Matters look particularly blue for the various southwestern lines which have been greatly hampered by expensive and unreasonable legislation and rulings of various kinds.
